EDUCATION

BY: GAVIN BALL

Have you ever thought about going to college to get a good education? Most likely you have. Most people start thinking about what college they want to go to while they're young. They might even think about what they want to learn about in college or what career they want after college.

I think it's important to get a good education by going to college, but it's also important to get a good education in grade school. Some people go to college to get a good education, good job, and to have a good career that could have an effect on their life. Some people's dreams and goals for their self requires going to college. For example: if you want to get a scholarship for a sport, then you wouldn't only have to work hard and persevere in the sport you want to get a scholarship for, but also you'd have to work hard and persevere to get good grades in school. Sometimes it's critical for someone to get a scholarship if they want to go to college, because if you don't have a scholarship then you'd have to pay, and colleges cost a lot of money that some families can't afford. It is important to get a good education in college because if you don't go to college, a job that a teenager might have as a first job, like a restaurant might be what you do for a living. It is also important to get a good education in grade school, because if you don't then you might not even get any job. So you wouldn't get money. Then you could end up homeless with no money and if you had a family you wouldn't be able to take care of your family or yourself, and your life would go nowhere.

I agree with a woman named Elizabeth Pennington. Elizabeth Pennington thought that all children should be able to have a free public education. Her husband, Dennis Pennington, was one of the men that wrote Indiana's first Constitution in Indiana's first state Capitol Corydon. She made him put in the Constitution that there would be free public education. So because of her, kids that live in Indiana can get a free public education which could help them get good jobs, earn money, and be able to better themselves and their families. So let's all make the world a better place once and for all by getting a good education.