Women's history conference Hoosier Women at Work recap

On Saturday, March 26, the Indiana State Library hosted a women's history conference Hoosier Women at Work. Over 100 people attended this once-in-a-Bicentennial event to learn about women's contribution to our great state's history. More than 25 speakers from all parts of the state gave talks on women's vital contributions through work. Nancy Gabin from Purdue University gave the lunchtime Keynote "Bossy Ladies: Toward a History of Wage-Earning Women in Indiana."

Participate in the second THATCamp Friday, April 22

The Scholarly Communication Committee of the Academic Libraries of Indiana (ALI) organization is pleased to invite you to participate in our second THATCamp on Friday, April 22 at the Hesburgh Libraries Center for Digital Scholarship at the University of Notre Dame. Registration, parking, and food are provided by ALI, so this event is free of charge for all attendees. All you need to do is bring your ideas and enthusiasm! We strongly encourage librarians, graduate students, archivists, technologists, faculty members, and anyone interested in learning or talking about the changing landscape of the humanities to

There were sessions on business women's work, crime and reformation, and discrimination and compensation for women's work. In a section on war production, we learned about the little-known work of Mexican-American women in Northern Indiana's steel plants during World War II and the Japanese War-Brides' challenges in factory work in the 1950s. We also heard about the work of college women during war periods and their many efforts to serve Hoosiers. In the session about the changing attitudes on women's work, the presenters spoke about the personal and societal transitions of women's "duties" and "place" in history, and how women had always contributed to our economy through our agricultural heritage. Continuing the theme of agriculture heritage, one speaker talked about the impact that land cession treaties between Native American tribes and the US Government had on the nature of the Miami women's work. The final session was a panel discussion on the future access and preservation efforts relating to women's history. All in all, it was a fun and informative day!

attend. Attendance is limited, so please register as soon as possible.

THATCamp stands for "The Humanities and Technology Camp." THATCamps are "unconferences," which means that specific sessions will be determined on the day of the camp and will be based on the interests of the attendees. You can propose sessions prior to the day of the event, and you are welcome to bring your ideas for sessions on the day of the camp as well. You can also submit proposals for five minute "dork shorts" prior to the event. These short presentations will give you the opportunity to share your ideas, projects, or plans with attendees.

independent nonfiction films, premiering 14-16 of the best, boldest and most innovative programs every year on PBS. The films are known for their intimacy, their unforgettable storytelling and their timeliness, putting a human face on contemporary social issues.

These award-winning films are available to libraries for free through the POV Community Network. Along with a DVD of the film, POV provides a discussion guide and suggested reading list to help librarians facilitate community conversations and provide context for the film.

In addition to over 80 films from past POV seasons, documentaries from POV's upcoming season are available for sneak-preview screenings prior to their debut on PBS. Check out their 29th Season Line-Up online with dates sneak-preview screening may begin.

POV's new season presents unforgettable stories of diverse people — ranging from war heroes to highly stigmatized criminals — looking to reintegrate into society, often against great odds. Other films feature heroic attempts to secure justice and education and to find fulfillment in the final stages of life. This year, each film poses difficult questions with no clear answers, providing space to engage your community in a dialogue around the most pressing social issues of our time. Trailers for the films can be seen here.

The free ILL workshop is open to the ILL staff of all Indiana public, academic and special libraries. It is tailored for IN-SHARE and InfoExpress participants, including Special and Institutional Libraries. The workshop covers the best practices for InfoExpress, IN-SHARE and ILL processing, and will include an update on changes to IN-SHARE and the new SRCS (Statewide Remote Circulation System) which are coming this summer. Attendees are eligible to earn LEUs, ACA Standards or Professional Growth Points certificates.

Free Book Giveaway

On the morning of the ILL workshop, the Indianapolis Public Library hosts its regular free book giveaway for Non-Profits (including Public, Special, and Institutional Libraries). This event takes place at the Indianapolis Public Library Services Center (2450 North Meridian Street, Indianapolis, IN 46208, [317] 275-4700) between the hours of 8:30 am and 11:00 am.

You are invited to bring boxes and haul your selections home yourself, or free shipping will be provided to InfoExpress members who pre-register for this service. This event is free, but you need to pre-register if you plan to use the InfoExpress shipping service by clicking here.

Registration

Please register for both the ILL Workshop and the IPL Non-Profit Day events separately; you can register for one or both events by clicking here.
