Sisters in Crime Shares their Love for Libraries

Send in a photo with a little holiday cheer and what do you get? How about a $1,000 "We Love Libraries" grant from Sisters in Crime? Sisters in Crime is a 3,600 member, 30 chapter organization that promotes the ongoing advancement, recognition and professional development of women crime writers. Throughout the year they award libraries nationwide with $1,000 to spend on books of any genre.

Brownsburg Public Library staff member, Jesse Lewis submitted the classic photo after we encouraged our

Library's New Digital Collection Showcases Early Women Leaders

The professional achievements of extraordinary Indianapolis women at the turn of the 20th century are featured in a new digital collection presented by The Indianapolis Public Library found at digitallibrary@imcpl.org.

"Early Women Leaders of Indianapolis" focuses on two of the city's most accomplished women, May Wright Sewall (1844-1920) and Eliza Gordon Browning (1856-1927), along with accounts of other leading women citizens documented in the weekly magazine, The Indiana Woman, which was published from 1895 to 1899.

Sewall was a pioneer on many issues, including women's rights, education, cultural enrichment and world peace. Along with her husband, she founded the Girls' Classical School of Indianapolis in 1883 and helped form other enduring local organizations, such as the

Privacy in Library and Government Services Conference May 27

Attorney, author, and academic librarian Gretchen McCord will speak on privacy in library and government services. Topics for this all-day workshop include:

• USA Patriot Act, FERPA, COPPA, ECPA, and the Privacy Act
• Federal and state laws, as well as constitutional considerations of privacy for public employees and employers
• Privacy in online activities, including off-hours conduct and social media use
• Rights to privacy in use of employer phone/computer
• Drug testing in the workplace
• Conditions for releasing information
• Liability considerations

Check-in will begin at 8:30 AM in the Great Hall on the 2nd floor of the Indiana State Library (315 West Ohio Street, Indianapolis, IN 46202). The first session will begin at 9:00 AM and our day concludes at 4:00 PM. A light breakfast and afternoon snack will be served. Lunch is on your own.

Read about Ms. McCord's achievements at http://www.digitalinfolaw.com/ and follow her on Twitter @GMcCordLaw.

This workshop will be approved for 5-6 LEUs. CLE approval for attorneys is pending. Funding for this workshop is provided by Indianapolis Woman's Club, the Indianapolis Propylaeum and the Art Association of Indianapolis.

Browning served as director of The Indianapolis Public Library from 1892 to 1917 and convinced local leaders as well as industrialist Andrew Carnegie to fund branch libraries to serve the city's expanding population. She pushed for the construction of Central Library in 1917 and coined the phrase "a live thing in the whole town" to describe how the library system should reach out to every local citizen.

Visitors to the site will find photos, correspondence and institutional documents that relate to each woman's many activities, as well as issues of The Indiana Woman.
This project is made possible by a grant from the U.S. Institute of Museum and Library Services, administered by the Indiana State Library.

The Library's growing collection of digital materials also features full-text yearbooks from Wood High School, which opened in 1953 in the refurbished buildings vacated when Manual High School moved to its new site on the city's south side. Wood, which closed in 1978, was designed as a new vocational training high school with a goal of providing secondary-level vocational education to its students. Its first yearbook was published in 1957.

The Wood High School yearbooks, known as the Wood Log, join those of nine other IPS high schools available in the Library's digital collection. The Library and its digitization partner, IUPUI University Library, present this digital collection from items housed in the Nina Mason Pulliam Indianapolis Special Collections Room at Central Library, the Marion County Genealogical Society and the Harry E. Wood High School Alumni Association, published with funding the Institute for Museum and Library Services.

Coming April 2nd - Gale Enhancements for GVRL, In Context and InfoTrac

On April 2, 2015, enhancements released to GVRL and all resources within the InfoTrac and In Context families (including the PowerSearch platform) will increase accessibility for those with disabilities like low vision or blindness, improve usability for desktop and mobile researchers, and create a common user experience across some of Gale's most popular resources.

Overall, the benefits of the enhancements include a modern design and consistent toolset that unites three of Gale's foundational franchises with an elegant user experience that is optimized for all screen sizes and devices, supports user workflow, and improves our performance against accessibility standards.

• Optimization for all screen sizes and devices
• Similar user experience across GVRL, InfoTrac and In Context
• High-contrast banners and buttons
• Improved navigation and workflow

State Data Center Coordinator Katharine Springer of the ISL explains GID15 in the following statements.

"This is a great day to learn from information professionals as well as talk one-on-one with federal, state, and local agencies.

"GID15 is a day for networking. Young professionals have the opportunity to interact with government professional as well as their peers.

"We are opening up the line of communication. While this day is geared towards librarians, it is a unique opportunity for the public to come in and talk to these professionals as well."

GID15 is a free event for anyone who wishes to attend. Librarians can earn up to six Library Education Units (LEUs) towards their certification.

Evansville 'One Book' Committee Announces Selection

The One Book One Community Committee is pleased to announce that Orange is the New Black: My Year in a Woman's Prison by Piper Kerman is the book selection for 2015. The book chronicles what Kerman calls her "crucible experience"—the 13 months she spent in the Federal Correctional Institution in Danbury, Connecticut.

A brief dalliance with drug trafficking while she was in her early twenties sent Kerman to prison ten years later on money laundering charges. In her compelling, moving, and often hilarious book, she explores the experience of incarceration and the intersection of her life with the lives of the women she met while in prison: their friendships and families, mental illnesses and substance abuse issues, cliques and codes of behavior. The book also raises provocative questions about the state of criminal justice in America, and how incarceration affects the individual and communities throughout the nation.

Piper Kerman to Speak Nov. 4

One Book One Community will host author Piper Kerman on Wednesday, Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Victory Theatre, where she will speak about her book. This event is free and open to all.

Television Series

Orange is the New Black was adapted into a critically-acclaimed Netflix series of the same name by Jenji Kohan. The Emmy and Peabody Award-winning show has been called "the best TV show about prison ever made" by The Washington Post and was lauded by Time's TV critic James Poniewozik. The show's third season will premiere this summer.

Librarians can use Lynda.com via the ISL website

Orange is the New Black is available in a variety of formats for loan through the Evansville Vanderburgh Public Library (EVPL) or for purchase at Barnes & Noble. Library discussion groups will soon be underway and several educational and social events surrounding Orange is the New Black will take place in the coming months as Southern Indiana prepares to read the same book and listen to Kerman when she visits in November.
